It's always better to learn than not, especially when you can learn for free. Check out these sites that will teach you everything from studying poetry to building your own website. You will never have another excuse to avoid learning anything! So what are you waiting for? Let's go! The need for speed hot pursuit patch 1.0.5.0 crack file.rar is dedicated to most people who love to learn new things. A list of the top 5 most easy-to-use new web sites on the Internet today! 1. List25 List25 is a list compilation website that was created by Andrew Merle, founder of Listverse. The site has about 150 topics for which you can submit your own lists of 25 items. One cool unique feature of this submission site is that you can vote for which entries are considered best, and the user with the most votes will move up in rank until reaching "top user" status where he or she will then be able to create their own lists (and earn badges too!). Other features of List25 include the option to submit your own lists, browsing by topic or tags, and comments for each list. 2. Smashing Hub Smashing Hub is a web design and development community with a focus on user experience and visual presentation. The site provides information on UX design, coding, graphic design, mobile development, interviews with UX designers from companies like Google and Microsoft Surface as well as advice from notable figures in the web industry such as WordPress founder Matt Mullenweg. The site also offers a book club that focuses on the book "Designing the User Experience," written by Jakob Nielsen. 3. UserTesting UserTesting is a community where users test one another via video feedback, and you get paid for it! Once you sign up, you can browse the Amazon.com-like catalog of available gigs and submit your own work to be tested. For each test, you will get a $10 Amazon gift card to use right away or cash in for more Amazon gift cards or PayPal payments.
