In a statement released to Fox 13 on Tuesday, the Salt Lake City law firm of Reichert Law Group says that they are planning to file a lawsuit against the Spanish Fork Church over a rule called the "one-dollar rule," which requires all donations made to a church to be in the form of one dollar bills. The firm says that the practice is "arbitrary," "inhumane," and "unethical," and it is discriminatory because of the denomination's religious practice. The "one-dollar rule" goes into effect when a church accepts donations in any denomination or currency. If a church member wishes to donate in a denomination other than one dollar bills, that person must pay a fee before the church will accept that denomination. The "one-dollar rule" states that if a church chooses not to accept a donation from that member, that person cannot donate any more money to that church. The lawsuit is going to be filed on behalf of Daniel and Sarah Fife, whose family attends the Spanish Fork Church. In a letter to the Spanish Fork Church's elders on Sunday, Sarah Fife wrote, "As a family that has been members of this church for generations, we feel as though the one-dollar rule and the new 'endowment' system are unethical and not in line with Church doctrine and teachings." In the same letter, Fife said that her family wanted to donate an "appropriate amount" to help cover the costs of the Fife's upcoming wedding, but the Fife's were unable to do so because the "one-dollar rule" prohibited them from doing so. In the statement, the law firm also said that they will also include claims that the "one-dollar rule" violates the Utah Constitution and Utah's Anti-Discrimination Act

There are many tutorials and articles on the internet about setting up record-enabled devices for Skype. There are also a lot of blog posts showing how to do it in Java and other programming languages. After you've already done your homework, however, there are some really easy options to use your computer's microphone or camera without having to manually start and stop record-enabled devices, every time you want to record audio. (If you don't want to learn about recording, we've got a more up-to-date guide on how to record Skype video calls. This script is a simple program written by our contributor "FrozenChaos" which automatically starts and stops record-enabled devices (microphone and camera) in Skype. Note that these scripts need to be installed on the computer that you plan to use as a recording device. The instructions will be provided after the download. How to run the script Run it in the same directory you downloaded the script in, and then open the Command Prompt. After that, you should have a new shortcut in the "All Programs" menu on your computer. Open it, and paste in the following script: "C:\Program Files\AudioRecorder\AudioRecorder.exe" or "C:\Program Files\AudioRecorder\AudioRecorder64.exe" Select the language in which you want the script to be run. Now, simply click the icon to start recording. When the script starts, a notification should appear on the main Skype window. As soon as the script is done, it will show 2d92ce491b
