The customer must first set up the system as a virtual machine. A: VCenter Converter Standalone is an add-on to vCenter Converter. Both products are part of the Data Management SDK. Vcenter Converter is a GUI tool to create VMWare vSphere virtual machines based on templates. Vcenter Converter Standalone provides the ability to convert existing virtual machines to a VM Appliance format. So the difference is that Vcenter Converter Standalone converts virtual machines from a VM Appliance format to a vSphere virtual machine. Vcenter Converter is a free product that can convert between VM Appliance and vSphere formats. Q: How to find the first file by comparing two files? I am trying to find the first file in a directory that is in any of two other files. I wrote the code that compares the first line of each file and prints out the corresponding line number. I am able to do it for one file, but I am not able to combine both. My current code is: path = 'C:\Users\user\Desktop\file1.txt' path1 = 'C:\Users\user\Desktop\file2.txt' with open(path, 'r') as file1, open(path1, 'r') as file2: for line1, line2 in zip(file1.readlines(), file2.readlines()): if line1 == line2: print(line1) A: Instead of zip you can use itertools.izip_longest for zip two or more sequences in parallel. Then you can use itertools.first for getting the first and only match or None if no match. from itertools import izip_longest with open(path, 'r') as file1, open(path1, 'r') as file2: lines = izip_longest(file1.readlines(), file2.readlines(), fillvalue='') first = next(
