José Andrés José Andrés (born February 20, 1954) is an American entrepreneur, restaurateur, and activist. He is the owner of many restaurants including Oyamel, Xochi, Mixtli, Contramar, Quiños, and Vida in the United States, and Jaleo, Las Pizarras, Teatro Andrés, and El Quijote in Spain. He is also the founder of the Teatro Andrés and the restaurant chain, El Celler de Can Roca. Early life and education José Andrés was born in San Juan, Puerto Rico on February 20, 1954. His father, Juan Andrés, was a civil engineer who helped design the Panama Canal. His mother, Margarita Esteves, came from a Sephardi family in Spain. The family moved to the United States in 1957. Andrés earned a B.A. in Management from Boston University in 1977 and a Juris Doctor from Boston University School of Law in 1980. While studying law at Boston University, he attended classes at the Fordham University School of Law. Career Restaurants In 1980, Andrés founded the restaurant chain, Alfonso's, as a mobile catering truck. The first restaurant opened in San Juan in 1983, and the name was changed to El Quijote in 1987. In 1984, Andrés opened the first Latin American themed restaurant, Xochi, in Washington, D.C.. The following year, he opened his first Spanish restaurant, Mixtli, in New York City. He went on to open a location of Xochi in Chicago in 1987. Mixtli closed in 1991. Andrés bought El Quijote in 1990. He then went on to open Las Pizarras in Beverly Hills, California in 1994. The restaurant is notable for the character caricatures that adorn the entrance. Las Pizarras, which was named after a chess piece, is currently owned by Steve Brown, the founder of the Brown Capital Group. In 2003, Andrés opened Quiños, a Latin American fusion restaurant. Quiños is named after a board game that his grandfather, Juan Andrés, taught him to play as a
