These include the concern that test-based teaching has the potential to increase the amount of time that students spend on test items in accordance with the number of items in the test. However, test-based teaching can also have important consequences for students' mathematics knowledge and skills. This study investigates these consequences by comparing the performance of students in a test-based course with the performance of students in a test-less, traditional course. The study also explores the relationship between test-based and non-test-based teaching and the effects of this relationship on students' mathematics performance. The findings suggest that the introduction of a test-based pedagogy in a mathematics course can decrease students' (a) performance on the midterm, (b) performance on a final exam, and (c) proficiency in problem solving. The findings also provide evidence that students who experienced a stronger relationship between test-based and non-test-based teaching over the course of the semester performed worse on the mid-term exam and the final exam. The discussion section discusses the role of test-based teaching in mathematics education and the limitations of the study.-2/15 What is the value of $12/160^{(-56)/21 \cdot 5}$? -2/5 What is the value of $(8/6)/((40/(-12))/((-55)/22))$? 1 What is the value of $((-2)/(-9))/(180/324)^{(-15)/(-24)}$? 1/4
