[The trend of correction of feet deformity in patients of corrected transposition of great arteries]. To analyze the rate of correction of feet deformity in patients of corrected transposition of great arteries. From June 2009 to November 2011, a total of 52 patients with corrected transposition of great arteries (CTGA) received follow up at Peking Union Medical College Hospital, the data of those patients were collected. Four hundred and seventy feet of CTGA patients were followed up after surgery. The number of follow up was one in fifty three feet. The number of patients receiving operation in two stages was eight. The average time of operation in this group was 2.0+/-0.4 years. The mean time of follow up was 4.1+/-1.2 years. The percentage of patients with normal arch height was 92.3% (401/440) by Bock approach. There were 32 patients received three-dimensional computed tomography (3DCT), average time of 3DCT was 11 months, the average time of follow up was 3.3 years. The percentage of patients with normal arch height was 100% (32/32). The deformed feet of one of foot arch from the patients of two-stage group were corrected perfectly, the long-term successful percentage was 100% (8/8). In the two-stage group, the percentage of patients with normal arch height and better functional outcome was 96.4% (40/42) and 100% (8/8), respectively. The deformed feet of one of foot arch from the patients of 3DCT group were corrected perfectly, the long-term successful percentage was 100% (6/6). In 3DCT group, the percentage of patients with normal arch height and better functional outcome was 100% (6/6) and 100% (6/6), respectively. The percentage of patients with normal arch height was 92.3% (401/440) by Bock approach, and 100% (6/6) by 3DCT in this group. Effect of time period between onset of the disease and biopsy of the prostate on the outcome of retropubic radical prostatectomy. To analyze the effect of the time period between the onset of the disease and the biopsy procedure on the outcome of the patients with prostate cancer submitted to retropubic radical prostatectomy in our department from 1992 to 2004. Between January 1992 and December 2004, 257 patients (median age 63 years; range 47 to 83 years) with clinically localized prostate cancer underwent a retropubic radical prostatectomy. Out of them, 226 patients were eligible for this study. We evaluated the correlation between the time period between the onset of the disease and the biopsy procedure and various pathological and clinical parameters, such as: surgical margin positivity, overall stage and grade, extracapsular extension, seminal vesicles infiltration, lymph node involvement and seminal vesicle infiltration. Out of 226 patients, 128 had a PSA of 0.05). The time interval between the onset of the disease and the procedure showed a statistically significant correlation with surgical margin positivity ($p = 0.026$). No correlation was found between PSA and grade and stage. The time period between the onset of the disease and the procedure is important in determining surgical margins positivity. There was no statistically significant correlation between this time interval and pathological and clinical results. Rapid test for simultaneous rapid identification and serotyping of Neisseria meningitidis. To develop a quick, simple and cheap method for rapid identification and serotyping of Neisseria meningitidis by using a combination of multiplex PCR and real-time PCR. A total of 222 isolates of Neisseria meningitidis from patients with invasive meningococcal disease from 2000 to 2004 in the central region of China were used as test strains. Multiplex PCR primers targeting the genes nadA, nhba, and tet M, and the real-time PCR primer sets targeting the genes nadA, and nhba were developed by designing the specific primers according to the published N. meningitidis genome sequences. PCR products were separated on agarose gels and electrophoretically transferred to nylon membranes to allow for further hybridization with digoxigenin-labeled nucleotide probes. Combined application of multiplex PCR and
