I'm reading some stuff about Mercurial and I'm trying to learn how it works. I see there are so many people talking about how to save local changes after an update and how to check if we are on official repository and what happens if we are on our own local copy. I'm a little bit lost here. What I have at this point? Repository with some files I did an initial clone to a local directory to experiment with. Now, I would like to check to see if I'm on my own copy or in an official repository. I want to save changes I did locally. Thanks. A: You need to be in a working copy. There are no formal mechanisms for telling you that you are in a working copy. It is just that
