Keymacro is a simple, but powerful application that lets you generate virtual stickers for your Mac from any image file you have. Once generated, you can use those keys to paste stickers into a PDF document, or use them to decorate an email, note, or even a website. It is important to note that the app can work with PDF files, Microsoft Word and Excel, and Adobe Acrobat files (for example, many businesses use it to apply logos to PDF reports). Keymacro is easy to use and has an intuitive interface, and you can add a lot of stickers in a short time. Flatworm is a workflow automation tool for OS X. Description Flatworm is a workflow automation tool for OS X that can create and run basic scripts for many applications. The scripts are plain text files with execution rules. The scripts can be saved to a hard drive or folder. A script is usually a set of steps where each step is executed in response to a trigger. For example, say you have a script that automatically copies files to a server. If a certain file is copied, it then needs to be attached to an email. The attachment is the trigger. Once the email is sent, the copy script is terminated. When you start a Flatworm workflow, it will create a new folder. Any files that are moved or copied in the workflow will be saved in the new folder. You can quickly start a workflow by adding files to the folder. Adding files is as simple as drag-and-dropping, using the Finder, or with the command-line utility scp. Once the workflow is started, any changes you make to the files are reflected in the workflow as the files are moved and copied. To edit the script, you open a script file using any text editor. You can then save the script to a new file, or modify the existing script. I found this workflow automation tool to be very useful when writing scripts for automating tasks. A script may be saved to a hard drive or folder. Saving a script to a folder can be done by dragging and dropping the script to the folder. Drag-and-drop operation is very easy to perform: If you have Finder running, you will be able to drag and drop from the Finder to a script folder. You can also drag and drop from a desktop icon to the script folder. If you are logged 77a5ca646e

You can save them so that you can use them later on with similar clips. Once you included all necessary data in the clip, you are ready to synchronize it with the data recorded in the logger so that they make sense when they are played together.
