FIFA is the world's leading club football game franchise that has sold over 90 million copies and generated over $6 billion in retail sales since its launch in September 1993, making it one of the most widely played sports video games in the world. Since FIFA 12, EA SPORTS has been the only official licence holder to FIFA. What is Football? Football is the most popular sport in the world – in 203 countries, there are more football players than people in every single country on Earth. In the UK alone, the government spends £9.4 billion a year on the sport; that's three times more than the government invests in the Royal Navy. What is eSports? eSports is one of the fastest growing sports in the world. As the game industry grows, more and more professional players are starting to take their careers to the next level. It's estimated that eSports has industry worth over $600 million. Football and eSports make a natural pairing. Anyone can compete in any game, but you're more likely to win when you play with players of a similar level. eSports now has tournaments for most major games, including FIFA. How will eSports fit in FIFA? We saw a strong eSports connection in FIFA 17, with the introduction of Seasons for FIFA Ultimate Team, a new eSports calendar, and new tournaments for FIFA Ultimate Team. In FIFA 18, we introduced cross-game tournaments for our Ultimate Team mode, bringing together FIFA and Battlefield. We're excited to announce our next step for eSports in FIFA 22. Will I get more players to my club? FIFA Ultimate Team will be the vehicle for eSports in FIFA 22. With a feature called 'My Club', you'll be able to invite and manage your players via your own custom teams, and claim new roles like Game Changer and Dynamic Strikers. Your players will have their own balance-changing characteristics - for example, adding an Awareness stat to your players will improve their tactical awareness. We're also introducing a new Stryker Ball system, which is inspired by the incredible game-changing skills of players like Lionel Messi and Luis Suarez. FIFA 22 Ultimate Team is free, and contains over 900 players and Legends. As our way of saying thanks to all of you for a wonderful community, we're giving away £1 million in Ultimate Team packs!
