More importantly, this technology is designed to identify and classify the real-life actions of players in motion and this data will allow the game to react accordingly. For example, you can expect to be performing short, short bursts of running, or long, sustained efforts as the game will react to pace and energy accordingly. Watch the FIFA Evolution Trailer in the FUT 19 Road to Vegas Trailer: Motion capture data collected for the video above has helped create the following gameplay data: FIFA has trained their algorithms to react more intelligently to match conditions and player style, with four distinct scenarios targeted: Balanced play: an even balance of short, medium and long running actions Ball-oriented play: players will typically attack the ball Ball-oriented or non-ball: players will jump onto the ball, make runs from deep, or dribble around the defenders with the ball Balanced or non-balanced: players will typically be attacking the opponent's ball or defending in a balanced way. Players will then be able to unlock a range of different match scenarios, with each scenario reinforced by a new set of tactics, modifications, and formations. Players will also have a new Mastery system that rewards players for reaching player milestones, in addition to the Skill, Style and Intelligence system they've had in previous FIFA titles. Skill will see players improve and unlock more options, with Style indicating how players best execute skill moves, and Intelligence reflecting how well players execute reactions during high-pressure moments. See the 6 Ways Playing "FIFA 22" is an Experience in Football below: Regardless of whether you're a long-time fan of the series or a new player to FIFA, there's no better time than now to step into the shoes of Ronaldo, Lionel Messi, Andrea Pirlo or other top-class players. Simulate your favourite clubs to unlock access to all of your favourite stadiums, customisable kits, and more. FIFA 22 is the first FIFA title to offer the Choice of Game Engine, which lets you play the game in either
